Episode 13

THE OTHER SIDE

Summary

Right now, your family, your loved ones who have passed, are waiting. They are in the Barzakh, anticipating the moment you will join them. But the question is, when you arrive, which list will you be on? There are two lists: one for those destined for Paradise, another for those bound for Hell. The righteous gather, waiting to see if their loved ones made it. When a believer's soul is carried in, they rejoice—celebrating a beautiful reunion. But for those on the other list, the separation remains. The Prophet ﷺ taught us that the key to being on the right list is in consistency. The small, sincere deeds that stack up over a lifetime. The window to secure your place is open now, but it won't be open forever. When the time comes, whose team will you be on?

Discussion questions

Consider the two lists mentioned in the episode—one for those destined for Paradise and one for those bound for Hell. How does it feel to know that our limited actions in this world determine our eternal fate in the hereafter? Reflect on God's immense mercy in rewarding our limited and imperfect deeds with the gift of Heaven.

Application

Apply what you watched in a concrete way to help deepen your understanding.

Think about one small but meaningful action you could commit to doing regularly, whether it's helping someone, praying at a certain time, or showing kindness to others. How can you make this a consistent part of your routine so that it becomes a habit, something that could be your "last deed" one day?
